SHORTTALKS WITH THE SCRIBES OF THE COUNTY PRESS.

Fall of a Little Boy Into a Well in Thomasville—Attempt to Wreck a Train on the East Tennessee Road—Good Deeds Done Daily—Other Items of Interest, Etc.

The Thomasville Enterprise tells of a narrow escape there last Monday. While T. E. Tiller, Messrs. Net Turner, and Bert Hamilton were sitting together in the house of the latter gentleman, the alarm was given that a little son of Mr. Hamilton had fallen into the well. That gentleman was naturally greatly alarmed and excited, and immediately rushed to the well, and scaling held of the rope stood down to the water with such rapidity as to burn all the skin from his hands. Messrs. Turner and Tiller also ran to the well and looking down saw Mr. Hamilton standing hoisted up to his neck in the water, and holding the boy. At length a strong rope was prepared, attached to a bucket and lowered. In this the boy was placed, Mr. Hamilton grasping the bucket with his hands. After much labor the father and son were both extricated by Messrs. Tiller and Turner, and Mr. Hamilton on landing was so exhausted by the strain, both bodily and mental, through which he had passed, that for a few moments he was unable to speak. The little boy received no injuries, and got only a rough ducking.

The Columbia sentinel, announcing that Mr. Hatchett has his coffin repository completed, says that "he is now prepared to furnish any style of caskets on short notice."

Say the Atlanta Constitution. A prime cause of so much sickness in the South is that so many people neglect to have their wells cleaned out. This is a matter that should not be neglected.

A reunion of Col. G's legion is contemplated to meet in Gainesville some time during September.

In Hall county there are now in the jury box the names of 294 grand jurors and 540 traverse jurors.

The reunion of the survivors of the gallant 3d Georgia regiment will be held at Findley's grove, in Gainesville, on Tuesday next.

Gainesville Eagle. Mr. John Blatt, the artistic foreman of the southrons, has been confined to his room for a few days past. We are glad to be able to assure our readers that he is now far recovered from his malady.

The action of CLAYTON.

The following is a portion of the democratic executive committee of Clayton county:

The democratic executive committee of Clayton county, in session, do declare as follows:

Whereas the time is approached for the selection of a suitable candidate for Senator of this (fifth) senatorial district, and

Whereas Mr. J. T. Pender, who is one of the few and best farmers of West Dougherty who live on their plantations, was in the city yesterday, and gave a representative of the News a full and favorable report with reference to the crops in his district.

Whereas the rotation system established by the democratic party has become a part of the unwritten law of the party and gives general satisfaction to all.

Whereas this county in the past (as she will in the future) will in every party conflict stand trial for the right of self-government, and contributed her efforts to every cause of justice and freedom.

Whereas, Clayton sound is she is so Fulton, in the strongest business and political tie to the trade, but is afraid that he will be lynched.

Therefore be it resolved, that we present to the democracy of Fulton county the name of Mr. J. T. Pender, who will guard sincerely the best interests of the county.

Resolved, That in order to determine the choice of Clayton county for senator and representative, we will hold a meeting in the hall of the county courthouse on the 22d day of August, 1884.

Resolved, That the election of members of the Democratic convention to be held at the hall of the county courthouse on the 22d day of August, 1884, and that the election of that of that of the heavy timber falling on Mr. Pender, breaking his leg in two places, crushing one knee and temporarily mangling both legs.

An Old Bridge Giving Way.

ATLANTA, Ga., August 15.—[Special.]—The directors for the new bridge over the Savannah river, on the Carolina railroad, were put in position today, and the hoisting of the granite into position at once. This new bridge will replace the old.

Whereas, this county in the past (as she will in the future) will in every party conflict stand trial for the right of self-government, and contributed her efforts to every cause of justice and freedom.

"TURN the rascals out," is the cry which will go far toward defeating Blaine as will his own corrupt record.

The democrats and the greenbackers of Iowa, through the central committees of both parties, have agreed upon a fusion, by which the electoral ticket will be equally divided.

The chamber of deputies has sustained the Ferry cabinet in its policy toward China. The Tongkin credit has also been voted. In Madagascar, French, operations have been successfully checked and nothing more will be attempted until reinforcements arrive.

The democrats of the Baltimore district of Maryland, after the excitement of two conventions and the taking of about fifteen hundred ballots, have decided that it is impossible to make a nomination. The matter is left in the hands of the state committee.

While thousands were cheering hoarsely for the winning horse yesterday at Brighton Beach, the dead body of one of the riders was waiting for the action of the coroner. The enthusiasm of the turf did not admit of a tear for the dead.

Ben Butler now enjoys the pleasure accompanying the undivided and enthusiastic support of Editor Dana and the New York Sun. The last dip brings that journal square into Benjamin's net. The Sun will now "shine for all" only one day in each week.

Another conspiracy against the life of President Gonzales of Mexico, has been exposed. It appears to have been very widespread and many prominent persons are supposed to have been interested. Conspiracies and revolutions in Mexico have become so frequent, however, that the announcement of new ones have lost interest even as news items.

The desperate attempt made by the penitentiary birds of Kentucky to escape from their prison was engineered by a gentlemanly criminal, who is serving a term for forgery. The full success of the scheme was thwarted by a murder convict, who will probably be pardoned. It was an oversight of the late Governor Blackburn that he was not pardoned before.

The payment of over a hundred thousand dollars to the creditors of the James bank will at once have a favorable effect on the money market in Atlanta. Finances have been exceedingly close in the city during the summer, and even before the last payment was made yesterday evening the effect of the distribution was perceptible, particularly in the banks. It is safe to say within the next fortnight the circulation of this hundred thousand will pay off a million dollars of debts in the city.

We take no stock in the violent and depraved methods now being used against both of the leading candidates for the presidency. It is wicked, unjust, and demoralizing. It was devised first by the republican press and pushed to its fullest extent in the vile accusations against Governor Cleveland. A democratic paper afterward responded on the same line in a more horrible charge against the morals of Mr. Blaine, which it claims is ready to substantiate whenever it is necessary. Not a word of discouragement by either Blaine or his managers had been made against the personal and unmanly fight being made on Cleveland. There is not a republican paper but what had pressed it in either directly, or what is worse, by design. A great tumult is now raised by the same republican press "that such depraved canvass is being conducted by the democrats." Blaine rushes to court for damages to his character to the extent of $50,000, knowing that it will be months before a trial, if ever, is reached. Only yesterday he was telegraphing all over the country about sacrificing his life, if it was necessary to protect honor. But these accusations, unjust though they may be, will continue, and it will not be brought in court before November. It must soon develop whether or not republican desperation has even made use of this for campaign purposes.

GERALD REPUBLICANS. "The republicans in Georgia," says the Boston Herald, "have organized as a 'white man's party.' It is a confession that the negroes are voting the democratic ticket, or that the republicans have no further use for the colored vote." It is neither. It is a confession on the part of the leading white republicans that they are tired of submitting to be elbowed around by the negro leaders who are clamoring for office, and who believe that the white republicans stand in their way. So far as the great majority of negro voters are concerned, they vote in any direction that seems to suit their temporary interest or convenience. The address of the white republicans—a very able and exhaustive paper from the pen of Mr. Jonathan Norcross—explained this with a simplicity and directness that has never been surpassed. That address declared that the vote of the average negro could be bought for a pint of whisky or its equivalent, and that this fact is a constant menace. There is no doubt that it constitutes a great temptation to ambitious men, and it is a temptation not frequently resisted.

The truth of the matter is that the negro voters care nothing about politics and nothing about parties. They would rush to the polls to vote for Grant, or Sherman, or Lincoln, but beyond this their interest does not extend. In local elections they take a prominent part on both sides, and the more money and whisky turned loose by opposing candidates, the more prominent the part the negroes take. The white republican party originated two or three years ago in the disgust of Mr. Norcross and a number of other leading white republicans at the high-handed manner in which the negroes took charge of party affairs. A meeting was held by these white republicans at the city hall, and this was the beginning of the new party. If the esteemed Boston Herald understood the inside workings, it would find a good deal of fun in re-reading its political politics in Georgia.

A WORD TO THE TRIBUNE.

Atlanta, Georgia.

ATLANTA, AUGUST 16, 1884.

"Southern orators," says the New York Tribune, "are beginning already to fire the southern heart with the declaration that the democrats of to-day are contending for the same principles for which they fought from Sumter to Appomattox." The Tribune is either dreaming or making convenient extracts from its old files. Such a declaration by a democratic orator would be the extreme of sillybilly, but the Tribune's statement that southern orators are making such a declaration is something worse. It is untrue, and the person that wrote it knew it to be untrue.

Sensible people can imagine what broad smiles such a declaration would bring to the faces of an intelligent audience. The principal fought for from Sumter to Appomattox was the principle that was supposed to exist behind the constitutional right of secession. The armies decided that secession was revolution, and that ended the matter.

SEVERAL recent quinine failures abroad have caused a steady decline in the price of the drug in this country. This state of affairs is attributed to the fact that the supply manufactured largely exceeds the demand. All the trouble is caused by over production. The demand has been about the same for the past five years. The European manufacturers have suddenly thrown their surplus product upon the United States, and it is not wanted. For the future the quinine outlook is as bad as it can be, except to the consumer.

The Mormon elders say that they will continue to get in a weaving way and preach secession, it will be the worst mistaken organ that was ever played on by a passing breeze of fancy. As the late Senator Hill declared, "We are back in our father's house, and we have come to stay." We are not only back in the house, but we expect to have a comfortable place by the fire and a front seat at the festal board. This is what troubles such dismal organs as the Tribune. They fail to understand the situation. They lack the true American instinct. They are desperately provincial, even though they are printed and circulated in centers of culture and refinement. While they are hiding and shivering, afraid to run from the kitchen to the "big-house," to use a homely southern illustration, for fear of seeing the ghosts of the past, the people of the country—the real Americans—have forgotten all the war except their respect for the brave men on both sides, who gave their lives to show the earnestness of their convictions.

We take pleasure in informing the Tribune that the south is as deeply imbedded in the union as the north. If any fan is to be had under the old flag and in sight of the Hon. Wharton Barker for the benefit of his esteemed family, we propose to stick by the old flag and keep a sharp eye on the treasury.

Ben Butler now enjoys the pleasure accompanying the undivided and enthusiastic support of Editor Dana and the New York Sun. The last dip brings that journal square into Benjamin's net. The Sun will now "shine for all" only one day in each week.

A remarkable action of a great national legislature has naturally attracted attention throughout the world. The general opinion is that it is a step towards open infidelity. Against this view, however, it is urged that the assembly made no objection to prayer per se, but held that it was out of place in the hurly burly of legislation and politics. Unfortunately for the acceptance of this plea, the world has not forgotten that France once abolished the Sabbath day and prohibited all religious exercises either in public or in private.

With such a record the French assembly need not be surprised if its action is construed as the manifestation of an irreligious spirit.

The making of laws for the government of a great nation is very solemn matter, and it is natural and proper that the lawmakers should in all sincerity ask for the guidance of a higher and purer wisdom than their own. It is not likely that our congress and state legislatures will follow the French example.

The people of this country, with all their frailties, are as a mass strongly opposed to anything that savors of infidelity or irreverence in high places.

Do bedsteads are now popular. One owned by a New York lady is the lower part of a barrel saved through at time from the ground. The mattress is filled with hair, and an artificial leather ticking. The wood is painted in dark colors, and around the edge is an embossed leather trimming fastened with brass-headed nails. A horsehair mattress, which appears the dog's name in gold letters. For a carriage it is first covered with a waterproof coating and then with a fine silk or satin fabric, and is painted and varnished with ordinary varnish.

Wood paving in Italy is at present the mode. The blocks are simply the covering for a well-constructed concrete pavement on which are laid. It is everywhere recognized now that foundation is the important thing in street paving as it is in all road-making. It would no doubt be a fortunate man to have a foundation that is required to guarantee it for eighteen years, and many years more is retained by the city until the guarantee is full paid.

John Kelly is quiet, as becomes a great statesman. The republicans are betting that John is shading his hazel eyes so that he can see things on the Blaine side of the fence. The bets find no takers.

The attitude of Private Dalzell is very peculiar. He is not only an Ohio man, but he writes campaign poetry. The remedy for this is not in the statute books.

Steve Elkins continues to be the great national republican leader.

The Buffalo slander against Governor Cleveland has dissolved itself into thin air. Now is the time for Brother Blaine to explain the Mulligan letters.

Sooner or later, Editor Dana will find in other words, a task with nothing but cotton between the crusts.

The New York Extra, which is far from extra, is an imitation of the Petty Journal, of Paris. The Extra, however, is a good deal better than the Petty Journal.

He Hopes So. Fitzgoode, in the past few weeks, has developed quite a talent for writing short, humorous paragraphs.

Of this trait he is very proud, and never loses an opportunity for letting the citizens of Atlanta know it.

The other day, he approached a crowd of gentlemen, on a corner, and soon turned the conversation to his brilliant efforts.

"Say," he said to Plunkett, "have you read my last bit of humor?"

"I hope so," sadly mused Plunkett, turning softly away, leaving Fitzgoode alone, wondering whether he had been insulted or not.

F. Marion Crawford, the novelist, comes from the Louisville Courier Journal. "Chesty," said Robert Lincoln, as he tossed out the line at Oyster Bay, "what's your opinion of the ticket?"

"Robert," said Chester, "you know I am a republican, and shall vote straight; but tell you Jim Kelly's chest is slim. Don't mention it to anybody, but I have the most positive information that J. B. has only twelve pairs of pants!"

Think any of this with only twelve pairs! Ah! I wish the convention to be nominated.

STATEMENT OF T. L. MASONBURG, Macon, Ga.I have known many of the men of Swift's Specific and have seen many of the worst cases of Blood Taint and Blood Poison cured with it, after having tried all other sorts of treatment; in fact, I have seen the case of a young man who was cured by the best physicians for Blood Poison, but all to no purpose, and at the time his marriage was arranged he was still disabled. He had to give up the work he had been doing, and took Swift's Specific, and was cured as sound as a
